PontusOne Announces New Structure

Woodside, CA, February 1, 2002 – PontusOne, the international recruiting and consulting practice dedicated to helping early stage companies cross the Atlantic, has been reformed as an independent company. PontusOne was originally established as a joint service offering between David Powell, Inc. of the U.S. and Gillamor Stephens of the U.K. Steve Balogh, President and CEO, will now vigorously lead the launch of the company into its next phase of development, in active participation with Gillamor Stephens.

PontusOne will continue to work closely with Gillamor Stephens in the U.K. to service the needs of existing and future shared clients. The company is actively research expansion into Asia with the same service offering. Steve Balogh comments, “We are now putting in place the necessary resources to allow the expansion of our business. We are confident we can fill the unique human resources needs that arise with international expansion.”
